

HILLIS SUIT IS SETTLED.

The suit of Percy Hillis against his uncle, the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, to recover $50,000 damages for alleged libel, has been settled out of court. Announcement was made yesterday in Justice Cropper's part of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn.

A motion by the nephew for judgment on the pleadings in his suit was marked off the calendar. The terms of the settlement were not revealed.

United States "balanced" Tires

One of These Tires Exactly Suits Your Car

No one type of tire will suit all cars—any more than one hat will fit all heads.

The type of tire you select should exactly suit your conditions of car, road use, and price.

That is why we make the five different types of tires pictured in this advertisement.

Among these five you will find the tire exactly suited to your needs—the particular tire to give you the greatest mileage.

Ask the nearest United States Tire Dealer for your copy of the booklet, "Judging Tires," which tells how to find the particular tire to suit your needs.

"Picturesque Patriotism" to Light Up 'Miss Liberty,' Says an English Actress.

Constance Collier Warmly Approves The World's Plan of Illuminating Bartholdi's Statue, Making It a Radiant, Majestic Symbol in Proof That Liberty Is Not Tottering.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

"When so much of the world's liberty seems tottering, so much of the world's light fading, I think America does a wonderful thing in guarding and glorifying its most splendid symbol."

That is how Constance Collier characterized for me the World's campaign to provide permanent illumination for the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor.

The distinguished English actress will appear and speak to-morrow afternoon at the matinee performance of "Macbeth" in the Gaiety Theatre for the benefit of the fund to illuminate the statue. Both she and Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree are to be seen in this film presentation of one of the greatest of Shakespearean dramas, and the two stars have offered The World their hearty co-operation.

Miss Collier and I sat at a table in the Parisian tea room of the Allied Bazaar and talked of The World's project. Her marvellous eyes, the color and softness of pine tree shadows, deepened and glowed; her long, lovely mouth bent in expressive curves as she spoke of her interest in the illumination of Bartholdi's famous statue. Miss Collier, by the way, is a living justification for those of us who believe the brunettes the highest type of beauty—beauty of velvet and fire.

"I am so glad to appear at The World's benefit performance," she told me. "I think the plan to make Liberty as radiant and majestic at night as she is by day is wholly to be commended. It is patriotism at once practical and picturesque."

"The immigrants, I have been told, stretch out their arms to the great, serene, benignant figure which gives them silent greeting as they enter the harbor of New York. Why should not this first vision of America remain in their hearts, and be the first little seed of real Americanism? And why, since first impressions are so important, should Liberty impress herself on the hearts of your coming citizens for only a portion of the twenty-four hours? Why should she not be a pillar of flame by night?"

"She will be all that when The World has raised its fund of $50,000. It is pathetic and splendid to read of how all sorts of persons are contributing their mites to this fund, of how little children are sending pennies, of how the citizens of small towns, many of whom will never see New York or the great statue, are working and making sacrifices to forward their project."

"There is another reason why I, personally, am delighted to do anything I can for this great work undertaken by your paper. America has been so marvellously generous, so big-hearted and responsive, in ministering to the appeal of the stricken countries of Europe that we who come from those countries should rejoice at the opportunity to take any part, however small, in a purely American movement such as this. You give us an Allied Bazaar—shall not a few of us, who have the chance, repay you in something more than mere expressions of gratitude?"

little contributions to this wonderful enterprise. Surely the core of your Americanism is very sound. Otherwise The

CONSTANCE COLLIER

World's appeal to wit that your country so intensely and supremely typified could never have met with the response which has come. It was "Liberty" which caused America to spring into being, "Liberty" which was the dearest dream of the great men who presided over the birth of this Nation, "Liberty" which moulded and shaped the unique American institutions, which still colors deeply and tremendously the American point of view.

"It is the fashion for some of the ultra-aesthetic to sneer at the Bartholdi statue," I told Miss Collier. "But don't you really consider it a tremendously impressive and beautiful thing, aside from its historic and patriotic significance?"

"Indeed I do," she said earnestly. "It is a statue of which any city might be proud. And when it is illuminated, when every splendid line and curve is traced against the dark in writing of fire, it will be a monument such as no European city possesses at its portals. Then, indeed, as a clever French paper said the other day, 'Liberty will enlighten the world.'"

"There is another reason why I, personally, am delighted to do anything I can for this great work undertaken by your paper. America has been so marvellously generous, so big-hearted and responsive, in ministering to the appeal of the stricken countries of Europe that we who come from those countries should rejoice at the opportunity to take any part, however small, in a purely American movement such as this. You give us an Allied Bazaar—shall not a few of us, who have the chance, repay you in something more than mere expressions of gratitude?"

TRIES TO LEAP INTO RIVER.

Policeman Drags Man Back From Edge of Manhattan Bridge. Sergt. Lehane of the Bridge Squad pulled a man from the guard rail as he was about to leap from the Manhattan Bridge, 420 feet from the New York tower, at 2:30 A. M. today. The man had been walking toward Brooklyn in the south roadway.

At the Duane Street Police Station he described himself as Vladimir Blatnik, twenty years old, a "farmer," living at No. 73 East Tenth Street, Manhattan.

He said he came to this country three years ago from Russia on a month ago worked on an up-State farm, saving $40. He became worried because he had not heard from his father and two brothers who joined the colors early in the war. He had been unable to get work, he said, and suddenly decided to "end it all." He will be arraigned in the Essex Market Court charged with attempting suicide.
